

The Program

The Scouting program has three specific objectives, commonly referred to as the "Aims of Scouting." They are character development, citizenship training, and personal fitness.

The methods by which the aims are achieved are listed below in random order to emphasize the equal importance of each.

Ideals - The ideals are set forth in the Scout Oath, Law, Motto and Slogan.

Patrols - Utilizes the benefits of interactive teamwork and leadership development brought about by the patrol method.

Outdoor Programs - Enhance cooperation and teamwork while learning ecology, practicing conservation and, most importantly, having fun.

Advancement - Rewards and acknowledges the significant accomplishments along the trail from Tenderfoot to Eagle Scout.

Association with Adults - Scout leaders can be a positive role models for the members of the Troop.

Leadership Development - Throughout the trail, the Scout is encouraged and offered the opportunity to learn and practice leadership skills.

Personal Growth - The above combined with community service, "A Good Turn" and the religious program all add up to personal growth for the Scout.

Last but not least is the Uniform - This apparel is definitely multi-functional. It is a positively recognizable symbol in the community. It is a tie to other Scouts. It is durable to work in. It can be used to demonstrate pride of accomplishment. It is also an equalizer.
